

Tenure-Track Position in Medical Anthropology

The Department of Anthropology in the College of Arts and Sciences at Case Western Reserve University invites applications for a tenure-track position in medical anthropology to begin July 2009. Rank is open and commensurate with experience and achievement, although appointment at the rank of assistant professor is preferred. Applicants should demonstrate the potential for research, publication and extramural funding. In order to be considered for a senior rank applicants must have a record of excellent research which is nationally recognized. The normal teaching load is two courses per semester and includes teaching undergraduate and graduate students.

All areas of medical anthropology are welcome but preference will be given to applicants with specialties such as International Health who will contribute to our new program in Medical Anthropology and Global Health. All geographic areas are welcome.

The application process will continue until the position is filled but interested applicants are encouraged to apply by October 15, 2008, when the review process will begin. Electronic applications to lawrence.greksa@case.edu preferred, consisting of a letter of application, addressed to Professor Lawrence Greksa, Chair of the Department of Anthropology, a c.v., a writing sample, and the names and email addresses of five referees whom we may contact. If the application is mailed, send it to: Lawrence Greksa, 236 Mather Memorial, Department of Anthropology, Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, OH 44106.

In employment, as in education, Case Western Reserve University is committed to Equal Opportunity and World Class Diversity. Case is a recipient of a National Science Foundation ADVANCE Institutional Transformation Grant to increase the participation of women in Science and Engineering. Applications from women and minorities are encouraged.