

Case Western Reserve University
College of Arts and Sciences

Samuel Rosenthal Professor of Judaic Studies

The College of Arts and Sciences at Case Western Reserve University invites applications for a newly endowed faculty position, the Samuel Rosenthal Professor of Judaic Studies. All areas of specialization will be considered and the successful candidate will be located in a department appropriate to the candidate's research and teaching. Rank is open, but appointment at the Professor or Associate Professor level is preferred. We seek candidates with an outstanding record of scholarship, teaching, and service commensurate with the proffered rank in the department in which they are hired, in accord with the qualifications necessary for the rank of appointment at our institution as stated in the Faculty Handbook and in the tenure and promotion standards of the department in which the hire will be placed.

Case Western Reserve University offers the student quality and class size of a strong liberal arts college, within one of the nation's major research universities. Complete applications will include a letter describing the applicant's academic background and prior teaching experience, including the applicant's expertise in the field of Judaic Studies, a curriculum vitae, a writing sample, and three letters of recommendation (sent separately by the recommender) to Jill E. Korbin (jill.korbin@case.edu, or Office of the Dean, Crawford Hall, 7th Floor, College of Arts and Sciences, 10900 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44106-7068). Applications received by January 15, 2010 will receive full consideration.

In employment, as in education, Case Western Reserve University is committed to Equal Opportunity and World Class Diversity. Women and underrepresented groups are encouraged to apply.
