

Political Science: Environmental, Energy, and Technology Politics and Policy

The Department of Political Science in the College of Arts and Sciences at Case Western Reserve University invites applications from outstanding scholars for a tenure-track position in the general areas of Environmental, Energy, and Technology Politics and Policy. Rank is open, but appointment at the rank of assistant professor is preferred, and our preferred start date is July, 2009. We seek a candidate who could teach courses within the American politics and public policy fields, and be willing to teach other courses such as interdisciplinary seminars. A high priority will be ability to contribute to a College initiative in policies and technology for energy and environmental sustainability. The successful candidate will use his/her knowledge of public policy to collaborate with cutting-edge researchers on energy and environmental sustainability issues, as we seek to join research to practice. We appreciate scholars with broad interests. Appointment at the level of Associate Professor or Full Professor will require a national reputation for expertise in the candidate's line of research, and a distinguished record of publication, as well as other qualifications necessary for tenure and promotion at our institution as stated in the Faculty Handbook and in the tenure and promotion standards of the Department of Political Science. Case Western Reserve University offers the student quality and class size of a strong liberal arts college, within one of the nation's major research universities. The teaching load is two courses per semester, and compensation is competitive and commensurate with qualifications. Junior applicants should submit (1) a letter of application stating research and teaching interests, (2) a curriculum vitae, (3) writing samples, and (4) three letters of recommendation. Items (1) to (3) should be submitted electronically. Send these files as e-mail attachments (PDFs are preferred) to joseph.white@case.edu. Letters of recommendation or, if necessary, items (1) to (3), should be sent as hard copies to Professor Joseph White; Department of Political Science, Case Western Reserve University; Mather House 111; 11201 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, OH 44106-7109. Senior applicants should submit to the e-mail address listed above a letter of application indicating research and teaching interests, and a curriculum vitae with a list of references. A Ph.D. in Political Science or comparable degree in a related field is required for appointment to the tenure track. In employment, as in education, Case Western Reserve University is committed to Equal Opportunity and World Class Diversity. CWRU is a recipient of a National Science Foundation ADVANCE Institutional Transformation Grant to increase the participation of women in Science and Engineering. Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2008, and continue until the search is concluded.
