Global Engineering Exchange Programs for Civil Engineering Majors

Engineering majors sometimes believe that their course schedules don’t allow them the opportunity to study abroad. However, CWRU is a member of the Global Engineering Education Exchange (Global E3), which enables engineering students to go abroad to universities in Europe, Latin America, and Asia while earning CWRU engineering credit. Engineering students who study through Global E3 can study abroad for a semester or year, and some students choose to study one semester and complete an overseas internship for the other semester. Below is a list of Global E3 universities that contain programs in Civil engineering.
