

School of Law responses to The Five Questions — 1/10/08

1. What would you like the Law School to be in five to ten years?

Improve its recognition and ranking as one of the nation's leading law schools

2. What will the Law School need to do to be successful in reaching that vision?

Improve the quality and visibility of the faculty; enhance the quality of the student body by increasing selectivity and financial aid as well as considering prudent reduction in class size and rationalization of the curriculum to make recent innovations more effective; improve placement of graduates in positions outside Ohio; and raise the money necessary to achieve its goals

3. What would you like the University to be in five to ten years?

Recognized as a leading research institution in a wider range of fields than it is now

4. What will it be necessary for the University to do to be successful in reaching that vision?

Get its financial affairs in order

5. What are the three to seven most important strategic issues for the University to consider in the strategic planning process?

Raise money necessary to realize these goals

Improve the quality of life for students

Promote interschool and interdisciplinary projects that build on current strengths

Improve the safety and appearance of University Circle