

MARCH MADNESS

“March madness” means Match Day at medical schools across the country. It’s the annual event at which graduating medical students learn where they’ll be spending the next several years of their lives undergoing internship and residency training. This year at Case, on March 16, 132 graduating students matched to competitive programs in 22 states.

Graduating medical students Julia Keith, left, and Sheena Howson, right, celebrate after opening the letters with their assignments. Howson matched to an anesthesiology residency at Vanderbilt University. Keith matched to a pediatrics residency at Northwestern University/McGaw Medical Center.

Inset photo, top: Medical student Timothy Imler and his wife smile for the camera. Imler matched to an internal medicine residency at the Indiana University School of Medicine.

Inset photo, bottom: Andrew Gottschalk (facing camera) and David Martin hug in excitement. Gottschalk matched to a family medicine residency at the Mayo Graduate School of Medicine. Martin matched to an anesthesiology residency through the Duke University Medical Center.

PHOTOGRAPHY BY MIKE SANDS

